

Brand Redirect program is being launched by Amazon India to leverage brands' expertise in providing post-purchase support to the customers (either via call or in-person) buying brand products on Amazon marketplace. Nearly ~10% of the customers on Amazon India marketplace need post purchase troubleshooting on their orders, in the absence of which they assume item to be defective, return the product and have to go through the purchase journey again. While Amazon does provide its own troubleshooting support to customers, the lack of propriety knowledge and tools makes it less effective than brands. Hence, we want to integrate brand support experience within Amazon user interface itself so that customers are exposed to the best troubleshooting support helping them retain the brand products. Under Brand Redirect Program, customers will be connected directly to the brand technician for on-call support.

We see this program as a good opportunity to reduce customer Returns and to help in improving CX significantly.

